

CEC READING LIBRARY · MIDDLE 2 · R1 ACCESS

Little Women

18 Chapters

Day 1-18

W31-W36

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 1: Four Sisters at Christmas

The Miller family, who live in a small town, has four children with unique ambitions. Their home is always full of laughter and interesting conversations about the future. Emily, the oldest, has determined to become a scientist and investigate environmental challenges. She has already established a small lab in her room. James, her brother, dreams of becoming a musician and creating significant music that inspires people. Their younger sister, Sarah, hopes to be a teacher who helps children learn. The youngest, Leo, wants to be an athlete and face the physical challenge of competition. Their parents encourage each dream, which are very different from one another. The house is always full of support and real hope for everyone's future. This family shows that different goals can live together in one home. They understand that sharing a life does not mean sharing the same dreams. The consequence of their support is a strong and happy family. ★ Each child feels free to follow their own path with confidence.

THINK Who is the oldest in the Miller family?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 2: Marmee's Gift

The Miller family has always been full of laughter and lively discussions. Their home, which is a cozy apartment in the city, is full of dreams that each sibling holds dear. Emma, the eldest, has recently decided to become a marine biologist. She has investigated ocean life for years and wants to protect it. James, her brother, dreams of becoming a professional musician. His room is always full of musical instruments and sheet music. Their younger sister, Chloe, hopes to be an architect. She loves designing buildings that are both beautiful and useful. The youngest, Leo, has a passion for computer programming. He spends hours coding games that challenge his friends. Their parents encourage these different ambitions. They believe that a family should be full of support for each person's unique path. The Millers understand that shared love is more important than shared goals. Their home remains a warm place full of individual hopes. This diversity has made their family life rich and interesting. ★ They learn from each other's passions every single day.

THINK What does Emma want to become?

Chapter 3: The Pilgrims' Game

The Miller family home is always full of laughter and lively discussions. Four siblings, who have very different personalities, live there. Emily, the eldest, has always dreamed of becoming a doctor. She has investigated many medical schools to determine her future path. James, her brother, hopes to establish his own technology company. Their small house is full of creative energy and big plans for the future. Sarah loves art and wants to challenge herself to become a painter. She believes that art can bring significant joy to people's lives. The youngest, Leo, dreams of being a musician which requires a lot of practice. Their parents encourage each child's unique ambition. The family understands that different dreams make life more interesting. They support one another even when their goals are not the same. This support is a consequence of their strong family bond. ★ Their home remains a warm place that is always full of hope and encouragement for everyone's future.

THINK What does Emily dream of becoming?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 4: Jo and Her Pen

Emily has always loved writing stories since she was a young girl. She has filled many notebooks with her creative ideas and characters. Her family, who values practical jobs, does not understand her dream. They expect her to choose a stable career like teaching or nursing. Emily desperately wants to become a famous author one day. She spends hours in her room writing, even though her parents clearly doubt her choice. This situation has created a significant challenge for her. She must determine how to follow her own path. The consequence of ignoring her passion would be great sadness. Emily has investigated different writing styles to improve her skills. She knows that society does not always expect much from artistic dreams. However, she wants to establish herself as a writer. This goal feels very important to her heart. ★ She will continue to write, even though the road ahead seems difficult.

THINK What has Emily loved since she was young?

Chapter 5: Jo's Hair

Emily has always loved writing stories since she was a child. She has filled many notebooks with her creative ideas and characters. Her family, who values practical careers, does not understand her passion. They expect her to choose a stable job like teaching or nursing. Emily desperately wants to become a published author one day. She dreams of writing famous stories that many people will read and enjoy. This dream feels very significant to her personal happiness. However, her parents clearly doubt that writing can be a real profession. They worry about the financial consequences of such an unpredictable career path. Even though they love her, they do not expect much from her artistic ambitions. Emily feels challenged by their lack of support. She has investigated different ways to improve her writing skills. She attends a workshop which focuses on creative storytelling techniques. The teacher there has established a supportive community for young writers. Emily is determined to prove that her dream is valid. ★ She will continue to write, even though the people closest to her question her choice.

THINK What did Emily fill her notebooks with?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 6: A Story in the Newspaper

Emily has always loved writing stories since she was a child. She has filled many notebooks with her creative ideas and characters. Her family, who values practical careers, does not understand her passion. They expect her to choose a stable job like teaching or nursing. Emily desperately wants to become a famous author one day. She spends hours in her room writing, even though her parents clearly doubt her choice. This situation has created a significant challenge for her. She must determine her own future path. The consequence of following her dream could be difficult. However, Emily has established a small goal to finish her first novel. She knows that society does not always expect much from young writers. Still, she wants to prove that her ambition is valid. Her best friend Sarah, who supports her completely, gives her confidence. Emily will continue to write, even though the road ahead seems long. ★ She believes that her stories can touch people's hearts someday.

THINK What does Emily spend hours doing?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 7: Beth and the Piano

Emily has always loved playing the piano for her family in their small living room. She is a quiet girl who finds great joy in simple moments. Her family, which includes her parents and two brothers, has always supported her musical journey. They have established a tradition of listening to her play every Sunday evening. Emily's music creates a peaceful atmosphere that everyone enjoys. She quietly loves sharing beautiful melodies with the people she cares about most. This simple activity has become a significant part of their family life. It clearly shows that a quiet and happy life can also be truly meaningful. Emily's story demonstrates how personal passions can bring people together. Her dedication to music has created lasting memories for her whole family. The consequence of her quiet dedication is a home filled with warmth and harmony. She has determined that her happiness comes from these shared moments. A life does not need public celebration to be valuable and rich. Emily's experience is showing her family that deep contentment often lies in simplicity. ★ Her music, which is gentle and heartfelt, speaks more than words ever could.

THINK What instrument does Emily play?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 8: Slippers for Mr. Laurence

Emily has always loved playing the piano for her family, which gathers in their small living room every evening. She has never wanted fame or public recognition for her musical talent. Her quiet dedication shows her family that simple moments can create deep happiness. This gentle routine has established a strong sense of peace in their home. Emily, who finds joy in these shared evenings, believes true value lies in personal connection. Her music, which fills the house with warmth, is a gift that requires no applause. The family members feel loved and understood through her melodies. This experience clearly shows them that a quiet life can also be truly beautiful and significant. They have learned to appreciate the small, daily acts of kindness. Emily's story demonstrates that personal fulfillment often comes from private joy. Her choice presents a challenge to the idea that only celebrated lives matter. She has determined that her quiet contribution is meaningful. ★

This simple truth can also inspire others to find contentment in their own circles.

THINK Where does Emily play?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 9: Quiet and Beautiful

Emily has always loved playing the piano for her family in their small home. She is a quiet girl who finds great joy in simple moments. Her family, which includes her parents and two brothers, has always supported her passion. They gather in the living room every evening to listen. Emily has never wanted fame or a large audience for her music. She believes that true happiness comes from sharing your gifts with the people you love. This quiet dedication shows that a simple life can be deeply meaningful. Her music, which is soft and beautiful, creates a warm atmosphere at home. It clearly demonstrates that personal joy does not require public celebration. Emily's story establishes that quiet contributions are significant. Her family has determined that these evenings are the best part of their day. The simple act of playing music brings them all closer together. This routine has become a cherished tradition in their household. It proves that love and art can flourish in quiet places. The consequence of her choice is a home filled with harmony.

★ A life focused on family can also be truly beautiful and complete.

THINK Who is in Emily's family?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 10: A Hard Winter Begins

The Miller family has faced a significant challenge this winter. Their father, who works at a factory, has lost his job due to the economic downturn. This unexpected event has created a serious financial problem for the entire household. They must now investigate every option to save money and pay their bills. The consequence of this situation is that everyone feels worried and stressed. However, they are determined to stay together and support each other. Emma, the eldest daughter, has taken a part-time job after school. Her younger brother, Ben, now helps more with household chores than before. Their mother has established a strict budget for the family. They all understand that they must work as a team to overcome this trouble. The family came out more united than they had been before. They have learned that sharing burdens makes them stronger. Their love for each other has grown deeper during this difficult time. ★ They face each day with more courage and hope than before.

THINK Who lost his job?

Chapter 11: Beth Falls Ill

The Miller family has faced a significant challenge this winter. Their father, who works at the factory, has lost his job due to the economic downturn. This consequence has forced them to investigate their spending and determine what they truly need. The whole family now faces very serious trouble that cold winter, but they stay deeply united. They have established a new routine where everyone contributes to the household. Emily, who is the eldest daughter, helps her mother with the cooking and cleaning. Her younger brother, Tom, takes on more chores than before. Their situation is difficult, but they support each other daily. They come out much stronger than they had been before because they work together. This experience has taught them the value of family unity during hard times. They now appreciate their simple moments together more deeply. The challenge has brought them closer and made their bonds unbreakable. ★ Their love and cooperation help them overcome every obstacle they face.

THINK What did the father lose?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 12: Stronger Together

The Miller family has faced a significant challenge this winter. Their father, who works at a factory, has lost his job due to the economic downturn. This unexpected event has determined their daily life and created financial trouble for everyone. The whole family now faces very serious trouble that cold winter. Emma, the eldest daughter, investigates part-time jobs to help with expenses. Her brother Ben, who is in middle school, cancels his plans for new winter clothes. Their mother establishes a strict budget for food and heating. They feel the cold more deeply than before. However, they come out more united than they had been before. They share warm meals and tell stories by the fireplace. This difficult time, which tests their patience, also shows their strength. They support each other more actively than before. The family understands that love matters more than money. They realize they can overcome any problem together. ★ Their bond becomes much stronger than it had been before.

THINK What did Ben cancel?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 13: The Boy Next Door

Friendship is a powerful force that can shape our lives in significant ways. A loyal friend who stands by you through challenges can be just as important as family. Many people have established deep connections that last for years. These bonds can sometimes feel as meaningful as romantic love. True friendship requires effort and understanding from both people. It is a relationship that you must actively work to maintain over time. A devoted friend will always listen to your problems and offer support. They will celebrate your successes and comfort you during failures. This kind of connection has a profound impact on personal happiness. I have known my best friend, Emma, since we were very young children. We have shared countless memories and supported each other's dreams. Emma is the person who always gives me honest advice when I need it. Our friendship is as strong today as it was when we first met. She has helped me become a more confident and kind person. I know I can trust her with my deepest secrets and fears. A friend like this is a true gift in anyone's life. ★ Their loyalty and devotion make the world a much better place.

THINK What kind of friend can be as important as family?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 14: Laurie to the Rescue

Friendship is a significant part of life that can challenge our understanding of relationships. A loyal friend who supports you through difficult times is as valuable as a family member. Many people have established deep connections with friends that feel just as meaningful as romantic love. These friendships can sometimes be the most stable relationships in our lives. A true friend is someone who has always been there for you during your happiest and saddest moments. They are the people who have helped you grow and become a better person. This kind of friendship requires trust and mutual respect between both individuals. It is a bond that can last for many years and survive various challenges. Some friends become so close that they feel like real siblings. They know all your secrets and understand your personality completely. Their presence in your life is as comforting as being at home. You can share your biggest dreams and your worst fears with them. A genuine friend will never judge you for your mistakes or your weaknesses. They will offer honest advice and stand by your side when you need them. Deep friendship teaches us important lessons about loyalty and devotion. It shows us that love can exist in many different forms. The connection you build with a true friend is a special gift. ★ It is a relationship that you should always cherish and protect.

THINK Who is as valuable as a family member?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 15: Jo Says No

Friendship is a powerful force that can shape our lives in significant ways. A loyal friend who stands by you through challenges can feel just as important as family. Many people have established deep connections that last for years. These bonds can sometimes be as meaningful as romantic love. True friendship requires effort and understanding from both people involved. It is a relationship that you must actively work to maintain over time. A devoted friend will always listen to your problems and offer support. They will celebrate your successes and help you through difficult times. This kind of support can have a major consequence on your happiness. Having a close friend can make you feel safe and understood. Some friendships become so strong they feel like family. These relationships are built on trust and shared experiences. People who investigate the value of friendship often find it is priceless. A genuine friend is someone you can always rely on no matter what happens. They accept you for who you are without any conditions. This acceptance is sometimes as valuable as the love from a partner. Deep friendship teaches us about loyalty, patience, and compassion. ★ These lessons can determine how we build all other relationships in our lives.

THINK What does a devoted friend do?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 16: Meg, Jo, Amy, and Beth Grow

Four sisters, who once shared a small room in a modest house, have faced many challenges as they grew up. They have investigated different careers and interests, which has helped them discover their true passions. Each sister has determined her own future, never forgetting the lessons from their childhood home. Their journey has established a strong bond that time cannot break. Emily, the eldest, has become a teacher who inspires young students every day. Sarah, who loves science, has started her own research project on environmental conservation. Their choices have had significant consequences for their family's happiness. They support each other constantly, always remembering their shared past. The sisters meet every Sunday for dinner, sharing stories and laughter together. This tradition, which they started years ago, keeps their connection strong. They have grown into capable adults, each finding her own unique path in life. Their home remains a warm place where they can always return for comfort. The love they built as children continues to guide them as women. ★ They prove that family is the foundation upon which strong individuals are built.

THINK What does Emily do?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 17: Different Paths, One Home

Sarah and her sisters have faced many challenges in their lives, which have helped them grow stronger. They have each investigated different paths, never forgetting the lessons from their childhood home. Their mother, who always encouraged them, has established a warm and supportive family environment. This foundation has determined the kind of women they would become. Each sister has chosen a different career that suits her unique personality and interests. Emily, who loves science, has become a successful researcher. Anna, who is creative, has opened her own design studio. Their journeys, which required hard work and dedication, have been significant for their personal growth. They support each other constantly, always remembering their shared past. The sisters meet every Sunday for dinner, never forgetting their family traditions. They discuss their weekly experiences, which strengthens their bond even more. Life has presented them with various consequences for their choices, but they face them together. They have grown into strong and kind women, each finding her own way in the world. Their story shows that personal change is possible while staying true to your roots. ★ The warm home they came from remains their safe place forever.

THINK What did Anna open?

Read the story. Then think about each question.

Chapter 18: Plumfield

The four sisters have faced many challenges that have determined their paths. Emma, who loves art, has established a small studio in the city. Sarah, who is practical, has investigated business opportunities in her hometown. Their journeys have had significant consequences for their family. Each sister has grown into a strong and kind woman, finding her own unique path. They support each other constantly, never forgetting their shared childhood. Mia, who studied science, has become a researcher. Lily, the youngest, has chosen to become a teacher. Their parents are proud of the women they have become. They visit their warm family home every holiday, always remembering their roots. The sisters have changed in many ways over the years. However, their core values of kindness and support remain the same. They each built independent lives, never losing their connection. This balance between growth and loyalty is their greatest achievement. ★ Their story shows that personal change is possible while staying true to yourself.

THINK What did Mia become?